A NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITY

In 1928 a total of 3,645,595 tourists cars entered Canada. The year before that the figures were 3,553,800. The increase for the year was 500,000 cars. At an average of three persons per car, more than 10,000,000 motor tourists came into Canada last year. The increase over the movement in 1927 on that basis would be 1,800,000. If these visitors spent on the average ten dollars each, they left in the country $100,000,000. The increase in spending by this class of tourists during the year of $15,000,000.

Obviously the motor tourist has become a substantial and an increasingly generous contributor to the annual cash income of the Canadian people, and the traffic he represents is an important factor in our national economy. Alberta, with the finest scenery in all Canada, gets a relatively small part of the proceeds from this traffic. Jasper Park, containing the finest scenery in Alberta, cannot be reached by motor car on any sort of a permanent and dependable highway. It is good business to continue to ignore the opportunity to import money without exporting anything?

IS THE DEBT PAYABLE?

The Allied representatives have finally decided that Germany owes somewhere between ten and twelve and a half billion dollars, or, at least, that is all there is, or may be, in time to collect. This represents about one-tenth the sum that the Supreme Council claimed on the Versailles treaty, and about one-fifth of the sum that was at first named as having been agreed to by Germany. Anyone who recalls to the idea that spoils belong to the victor at the close of a modern war should recall the war-time declarations that Germany would have to "pay for the war," and then ponder the significance that the most the Allies now demand is the dollar in ten on the out-of-pocket cost and damage.

At that, the Allied representatives at Paris are a cheerful lot. They expect to get this title of the original damage bill. Scattered over 58 years, it involves annual payments running up to $600,000,000 per year. The whole amount of the debt of Canada last year was $450,000,000. Germany has six times our population. But that it can carry on the expense of government and pay any such colossal sum year after year into foreign treasuries requires a large output of the economic machine for finance. The more so that Germany will have to do its paying with exported goods; and the Allies do not wish to go down to Germany to compete in neutral markets with their own goods. Bearing that in mind; supposing Germany can pay, the question remains whether the Allies can afford to accept payment.

FRIEDA SCHNEIDER

Edmonton people have been astounded and humiliated—as they had every reason to be—by the tragic circumstances surrounding the death of Frieda Schneider. That such a thing could happen was incredible until it actually occurred. It occurred through a series of blunders, which were made by the police station in Edmonton, though now a large city, is still trying to get along with some of the equipment, practices and traditions of small town days.

The first blunder was in taking the girl to the police station. She was taken home. She was taken to the police station on an allegation that she had taken poison. She admitted having done so. If there was any foundation for the charge against her, sufficient to justify her being arrested, she should have been taken to a hospital and not to the police station. When a man tries to suicide with a revolver, and fails, he is not put in jail. He is hurried to the hospital and doctors are summoned to try and save his life. That should have been done with the Schneider girl. Quite likely she would have died; but the city and its officials would have been blameless.

The second blunder was that when she was taken to the police station, no one, nobody's particular business to give her medical attention. We have no police doctor for a customer of health has been acting in that capacity, on order from the police. But that is not part of the job of the administrative head of the city's health department. No doubt he erred in not recommending that the girl be sent to hospital. So did the other physician who was called in to consult with him. They were deceived by her appearance, and didn't believe she was in danger. A police doctor, used to dealing with such cases, would have taken no chances.

When the girl came up for trial, Magistrate Murphy suggested that she should be sent to hospital, but could do no more than suggest. Blunder number three seems to be that, in our village way of handling such matters, even a magistrate has not power to order a sick prisoner out of the cells and into some place where proper medical treatment can be given. To these circumstances add the fact that our "lock up" deserves all that has been said about it as an unfit place in which to house well people, to say nothing about sick people. With no infirmity attached, and not even a doctor in regular attendance, that about of gloom and misery is no proper place to incarcerate anyone whose worst offense is that he is accused of some violation of the law—of which he may be innocent.

It is too late to do anything for Frieda Schneider. But it is not too late to prevent a recurrence of the tragedy that has thrown a lurid light upon the conditions which surround anyone who is "sick and in prison" at the police station. That dressing affair has shown that at least these things should be done, and done forthwith.

Some one on the police force should be given authority to order a prisoner to hospital for examination and treatment, without waiting for a recommendation from any one or standing on ceremony of any sort.

A police doctor should be appointed and made directly responsible for the health of prisoners.

A magistrate should be empowered to order a prisoner into hospital for examination or treatment, even against the opinion of police officers or police doctor if necessary.

And Edmonton should provide accommodation for prisoners held at the police station which will conform to the principle that every person is innocent until he is proven guilty, and entitled to decent treatment whether guilty or innocent.

Two Gardens

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A rich man strolled his garden through one morning in the April. He heard the birds were blue. He heard the birds were blue. He heard the birds were blue.

A thousand tulips, red and white, bloomed in the garden. He heard the birds were blue. He heard the birds were blue. He heard the birds were blue.

A little woman in the street. She heard the birds were blue. He heard the birds were blue. He heard the birds were blue.

She heard the birds were blue. He heard the birds were blue. He heard the birds were blue.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY
Diet Specialist and Author of "The Food Key to Health"

Questions on Health and Diet Answered by Dr. McCoy, when addressed in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

A CLEANING SPRING DIET COURSE

This is the first of a series of articles in which I will explain how every one of my readers may receive excellent results through following the same general diet regime. The springtime is especially a good time in the year for you to undergo a thorough bodily housecleaning. These articles for the next two weeks will explain exactly how it can be done.

Those of my readers who have been closely following the daily health articles will understand more readily how it is possible to get such good results in every case, even though each reader has a different complication of symptoms and ailments. Many who have just begun interested in the daily health articles may need some further explanation.

Those who are just beginning to study dietetics will too often think that food can be used in the way we used to think medicine could be given, that certain foods could be given for certain diseases. You have all read a great deal of nonsense about "breakfast building foods," and about foods good for the heart, liver, and some of the other organs. While it is not true that any one kind of food can cure any one disease, it is a very different matter to attempt to explain a dietetic regime suitable for the cure of all types and classes of disease. I can assure you that the problem is not so simple as it may at first seem to be.

As I look over the early days of my dietetic study, I remember how confusing all of the different diet theories were to me. I was sure that some of the diet theories seemed to me, so I can easily realize your beginner's attitude. The amazing fact is that every year I have found that the complicated theories of my early study have given way to the simple ones.

If you are willing to take advantage of the simple theories of dietetics, and experience it will be necessary for you to go through the process of study and arrive at some very simple, true dietetic theory. I have found that the simple dietetic theory is the one that gives the most satisfactory results. If you will but follow the simple dietetic theory, the results will speak for themselves.

CHARACTER CLOSE-UPS

Question: Mr. M. W. writes: "Please tell me if there is any vegetable or fruit that is fattening if eaten continuously?"

Answer: Potatoes and Hubbard squash are about the only fattening vegetables. The fruits which contain the most fat are avocados. Bananas are also fattening, but not so much as the potatoes and the Hubbard squash.

Question: Mrs. E. B. writes: "I am 35 years old and seem in good health, except that I have trouble with a burning sensation in my right eye, from the tip to the nose. Also I do not sleep well. You go to bed, but in a little while I am wide awake. Will you suggest some remedy to curing the past half century?"

Answer: Your trouble may be due to a nerve trouble of the liver of all bladder. Enlargement or congestion of the liver or the bladder will affect certain of the nerves going to the eye and the nose. It is necessary to consult some physician who is skilled in nerve trouble and who understands manipulative treatment of the spine.

Keeping Mentally Fit

By Joseph Jastrow, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., LL.D.
Professor of Psychology, University of Wisconsin, 1888 to 1917; now professor emeritus; formerly in the New School for Social Science, New York City; past president of the American Psychological Association

REFLECTS TO READERS
Does Your Mind Turn or Turn Out?

As a student of psychology, I would like to suggest to you a few things which you might do to keep your mind fit.

First—As a student, you are likely to be interested in the world that is around you. This is a good thing, but it is also a danger. If you are too interested in the world that is around you, you will not be interested in the world that is inside you.

Second—Are you too intellectual? Intellectualism is a good thing, but it is also a danger. If you are too intellectual, you will not be able to feel the things that are around you. You will be too busy thinking about them.

Third—Are you too busy? If you are too busy, you will not have time to think about the things that are important to you. You will be too busy doing the things that are necessary to live.

Fourth—Are you too tired? If you are too tired, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too exhausted to do the things that are important to you.

Fifth—Are you too nervous? If you are too nervous, you will not be able to think calmly. You will be too anxious to do the things that are important to you.

Sixth—Are you too lonely? If you are too lonely, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too sad to do the things that are important to you.

Seventh—Are you too old? If you are too old, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too tired to do the things that are important to you.

Eighth—Are you too young? If you are too young, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too excited to do the things that are important to you.

Ninth—Are you too rich? If you are too rich, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too busy to do the things that are important to you.

Tenth—Are you too poor? If you are too poor, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too worried to do the things that are important to you.

Eleventh—Are you too healthy? If you are too healthy, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too busy to do the things that are important to you.

Twelfth—Are you too sick? If you are too sick, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too tired to do the things that are important to you.

Thirteenth—Are you too happy? If you are too happy, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too excited to do the things that are important to you.

Fourteenth—Are you too sad? If you are too sad, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too worried to do the things that are important to you.

Fifteenth—Are you too angry? If you are too angry, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too excited to do the things that are important to you.

Sixteenth—Are you too calm? If you are too calm, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too bored to do the things that are important to you.

Seventeenth—Are you too nervous? If you are too nervous, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too excited to do the things that are important to you.

Eighteenth—Are you too calm? If you are too calm, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too bored to do the things that are important to you.

Nineteenth—Are you too happy? If you are too happy, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too excited to do the things that are important to you.

Twentieth—Are you too sad? If you are too sad, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too worried to do the things that are important to you.

Twenty-first—Are you too angry? If you are too angry, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too excited to do the things that are important to you.

Twenty-second—Are you too calm? If you are too calm, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too bored to do the things that are important to you.

Twenty-third—Are you too nervous? If you are too nervous, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too excited to do the things that are important to you.

Twenty-fourth—Are you too calm? If you are too calm, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too bored to do the things that are important to you.

Twenty-fifth—Are you too happy? If you are too happy, you will not be able to think clearly. You will be too excited to do the things that are important to you.

SYNDICATE TO PUT UP PLANT OUTSIDE CITY

Alberta Power Co. Plans to Erect Steam Plant on Coal Bed

An offer to supply the city with bulk power, generated by a steam power plant located outside the city limits on a coal bed, was formally presented to Mayor A. U. G. Bury on Tuesday by J. W. Abbott, representing the Alberta Power company.

This makes the fourth proposal received by the city in connection with the supply of power, and with other offers is scheduled for consideration at a special meeting of council Tuesday night.

The proposed draft agreement contains a clause providing that the city should be satisfied with the plant, if the city should desire to acquire the plant, it should be sold to the city at a price to be determined by a local agency, backed by strong evidence of the value of the plant.

The main proposal is for a modern steam plant located on a coal bed, with a capacity of 100,000 kilowatts, and the city will be responsible for the construction of the plant.

URGES ACTION TO MAKE SURE NO REPEAT

Resolution Asks for Proper Medical Attention to all Such Cases

Protesting against the circumstances that surrounded the death of a young woman, the city council has passed a resolution urging action to make sure no repeat.

The resolution, which was introduced by Councillor J. W. Abbott, was passed by a vote of 10 to 2.

The resolution calls for a special attention to such cases as the death of a young woman, and for a special attention to such cases as the death of a young woman.
